FIVE-TRY PARK GET ANOTHER WIN

Park take the game to Fylde as Ed Milne is driven on [Photo by Marian Parker]

Welcome to Parknews. Park deservedly won with a bonus point against Fylde last Saturday, but it was hard to escape the feeling that the final score of 36-19 perhaps under-valued Fylde's contribution to the match. In the first half - admittedly with a strong wind at their backs - for long periods they starved Park of any worthwhile possession. Overall it was a young Park side with several changes of personnel that took the field, and it took a while before they really clicked. It was certainly only in patches during the first half that Park played the Rugby we are really capable of, but the other side of that particular coin is that if you can score five tries against Fylde while playing below what you are capable of... But Coaches and players alike will be aware that away to Coventry this coming weekend will be a significantly tougher assignment.

Last Saturday's attendance was boosted by those at the Former Players' Lunch, but even so it looked a pretty good turnout for an end of season match against a side in the bottom half of the League. Perhaps partly we are benefitting from the sad demise of London Welsh, but it would be nice to think that people are attracted to what we have to offer in terms of entertainment and ambience. Please do spread the word and encourage your friends and colleagues to come along and sample the club. A couple of hundred extra on the gate every match would make a big difference.

This Saturday

This coming Saturday's opponents, Coventry, get the largest home gates in National One, and they really get behind their team. It would be great to see and hear a small army of Park supporters at the match. Coventry is less than an hour from Euston on the fast Virgin trains from Euston (make sure you book an advance ticket to get the cheap fares). If you have a little more time then the slightly slower London Midland service - also from Euston - has some really cheap fares available. The Coventry ground at Butts Arena is walkable in 15 minutes for most people.

Coventry are old friends from the time that both clubs were in Rugby's top flight, though the two clubs first met at Coventry in December 1898! Cov have made no secret of their ambition to return to the top flight, having recently invested over a million pounds in obtaining the master lease to their Butts Arena, which will allow them to develop it into one of the best grounds in the country. They have been in the forefront of clubs denouncing the proposed salary cap in National 1 to the extent that they have said they will ignore it. Doubtless there will be some interesting discussions at the Committee Lunch!

However, most of us will be more concerned with what is happening on the field. The two Clubs are parted by only a single point in the League table. Matches at Butts Arena have always been extremely tight and well-contested affairs and there is no reason that Saturday's match will be any different. Both clubs achieved 5-point wins last Saturday, in Coventry's case away to Cambridge by 36-27.

If you can make it, there's a map showing the ground location at <http://www.streetmap.co.uk/map.srfx=432384&y=278762&z=0&v=CV1+3GE&st=2&pc=CV1+3GE&mapp=map.srf&searchp=ids.srf>

At the Rock

If you can't make Coventry then there is some excellent (free!) entertainment available at the Rock. The Nomads should be back from their tour to Cape Town to play their Surrey Championship match against London Exiles 2, due to kick off on the 4G at noon. After that the Hatters, who have completed a successful season in the Zoo Sports Shield, play a 'friendly' against old rivals in the form of Kew Occasionals. That is due to kick off at 2:00PM. If last week's curtain raiser involving the Fours is anything to go by there should be some rich entertainment. Why not come along and perhaps enjoy the odd alfresco beer on a pleasant afternoon?

Rosslyn Park 36

Fylde 19

National 1

The final margin possibly slightly flatters Park, though they were still good value for the bonus point win that keeps them in fifth place in National 1.

Fylde, with a strong wind at their backs, made the early going, starving Park of possession and scoring tries through the back row pair of Ben Vernon and David Fairbrother in the 14th and 22nd minutes. Both efforts were converted by fly half Greg Smith for a lead of 0-14.

That galvanised Park, who began to win worthwhile possession and pressed the visiting defence, leading to a yellow card for Fylde full-back Warren Spragg.

Park took full advantage. Winger Josh Watkins got over from close range on 32 minutes, fly half Harry Leonard's conversion halving the deficit.

Six minutes later Leonard turned provider, with a smart grubber kick inside his own half starting a superb move that was finished off by centre Rhys Crane under the posts. Leonard's conversion attempt was charged down so Fylde took a 14-12 lead into the second half, but this time facing the wind.

Park began to dominate play and forward pressure from a series of pick-and-drives ended with Watkins sniping his second try from close range. Leonard converted and, eight minutes later, added a penalty for 22-14.

Fylde showed they still needed to be respected, banging a penalty to touch deep in the Park 22 and lock Jack Turley crashed over out wide for 22-19 on the hour.

That was Fylde's final flourish as Park stepped up their game. Jamie Harries burst through attempted tackles to score, bringing the bonus point, converted by Leonard for 29-19 on 69 minutes.

Fylde were by now completely flummoxed and the match was ended with prop Ali Wade running in a good try, converted by Leonard, while Fylde lost two defenders to the sin bin. Final score 36-19.

Park Forwards Coach, Kieran Power, said he was, "Happy with the result, but not with the first 60 minutes.

"We had lots of changes with youngsters coming in so overall I'm pleased with the outcome - but there's a lot of work to do leading into the match at Coventry next week.

"That's a big game and we have to be sure we get the development right of the younger players coming in".

Park: Henderson, Crane, Reay, Kohler; Leonard; Gash; Nwakor, Piper, Maguire; Milne, Frampton; Ovens, Harries, Spencer.

Clubsides

Before getting on to Will Thorogood's review of the Clubsides' weekend, we have news and a photo (below) from the Nomads in Cape Town. The pic (from Adam Tyrer) was taken after the game against Hamilton Dynamiters in the shadow of table mountain. Nomads came 2nd but a very enjoyable game and we dominated up front which is always satisfying against the staffers - even managed to score a penalty try from a scrum we drove from 15m out!

The tour rounded off with a trip to swim with great white sharks in the Indian Ocean and a dinner at the Cape Town Butcher Shop and Grill (no relation) where the lads attempted to eat their own body weights in red meat.

Middlesex Merit Play-off

Cometh the hour, cometh the IVs. On what can only be described as a sublime day in South West London, the Rock was looking at its most beautiful and artificially green best, ready for IVs to take centre stage in the playoffs for the third year in a row.

It's safe to say the IVs had somewhat stumbled into the playoffs with injuries, stags and holidays decimating numbers. However, this was a side accustomed to turning it on in the playoffs with complacency not an option as we knew a well drilled and determined HAC squad was looking for the upset win after a run of good results to close the regular season.

Following an unusually lengthy and slick warmup we were off and despite some early Park pressure, HAC ended up gaining the edge and breaking into Park's redzone. After giving it the big chat about making your hits and being physical in defence, Callum unfortunately got a bit confused with HAC's running lines and allowed the fly half to walk in barely touched. HAC had got the early break and were looking to capitalise. This would be their last sniff at a win as Park reached into their bag of playoff experience to compose themselves and set off again. After some deft kicking from Hynsey, and sustained phase play and pressure from the pack, Park were camped on the HAC 5 metre line looking to get over the white-wash. It eventually came with Slim Jock redeeming himself and slipping through the defence to go under the posts. We were back in it and very much in the ascendancy.

From the restart Park were back on the front foot and beginning to turn the screw on a HAC team now realising the scale of the challenge that lay ahead of them. Despite continued phases on their line, Park could not quite convert, coughing the ball up or just forcing it that step too far. Salvation however would come through a HAC scrum on their 5 metre line. After barely winning their own ball with a rampant front 5 causing havoc in the tight, HAC's fly half was forced to scramble for his life to get the kick away, only to find the lightning quick CHlarman, who charged down the kick, collected it amongst a sea of arms, and then had the awareness to touch down before hitting the dead ball line. The IVs were now becoming on fire, HAC's defence starting to become increasingly more terrified.

Unfortunately the game took a cruel twist with one of the HAC players having to be stretchered off for a suspected head injury. After a lengthy delay, HAC started the brighter after the interlude appearing to break Park's momentum. This would be short lived though as Hynsey and Gus produced some magic down the right side line. After a back hand pass from Hynes, Gus with work to do he held off several HAC defenders before somehow managing to avoid touch and reach the whitewash. 19-7 and Park were rolling. As has become a trademark for the season, the IVs were then visited by a ghost. No, this wasn't one of Frtzil's victims coming back from the dead to haunt him; it was a beautiful ghost line from Kouj following a no-look, beautifully timed pop from Andy Foode for another score under the posts.

This brought in the half and a 26-7 lead for Park, the taste of another final was in their mouths, with just a 40 minute slog into the wind ahead of them.

Wage cap plan 'will harm potential England players'

By NEALE HARVEY

ROSSLYN Park managing director Shaun Justice fears the development of England players will be stymied by new proposals before the RFU Council.

Council members will vote next month on Union plans to cap wages at £150,000 per club in National One, while The Rugby Paper understands Championship clubs remain keen to push ahead with a plan that would see the third tier champions forced to play-off with the Chamampionship's bottom team for the right to be promoted.

Justice insists a combination of the two would amount to ring-fencing by stealth and that the knock-on effects would be devastating to level three clubs like his.

Justice said: "All the signs suggest the professional end of the game will be ring-fenced by stealth, which will be a massive shame.

"There'll be huge knock-on effects if they take away the dreams of National One clubs, many of whom have better structures than some Championship clubs.

"To shut the door on them without any consultation would not be great for the game and whatever the RFU are planning, whether it's for the next three or five years, I just wish they would come clean and make things clearer to clubs like ours.

Worried: Shaun Justice

"If you introduce wage caps and remove the competitive element, the gap between the Championship and National One will grow; crowds will suffer, income at every level will fall and I don't see how our clubs could develop."

Justice believes such a scenario would directly affect the flow of talent into Eddie Jones's senior England squad.

He explained: "I don't think people appreciate the bigger picture of just how many of the current England squad have played National One rugby.

"At Rosslyn Park in recent years we've faced Jonathan Joseph (Barnes), Joe Launchbury (Worthing), Joe Marler, Kyle Sinckler and Jack Clifford (all Esher), Maro Itoje (Old Albanians), Mako Vunipola (Clifton) and George Horne (Barking).

"We've got three of the current England U20s squad on loan to us in Sam Aspland-Robinson, Dom Morris and Rory Brand and a pretty high per centage of the team that just won the Six Nations Grand Slam play in this league.

"National One has made a huge contribution to England but if you suddenly ring-fence it and clubs can no longer afford to maintain or improve their standards, will that healthy situation continue? I don't believe it could."

The lads were at it again straight from the off with a beautiful run from Rixy inside his 22 getting Park back into HAC's half. This was followed by a crafty pick and go from the CHlarman who then gave the offload for Sumo Chi to score in the corner and begin a nervous second half desperately avoiding the hat-trick.

Shortly following this Park sealed the game as Hynsey capped off a sublime all round game audaciously stepping inside from 30 metres out then turning the full back inside out with his footwork and going round him for another score under the posts.

HAC were not done yet though. Despite the game now being well beyond them, they picked up a well worked try and proceeded to get back in Park's 22 after a string of penalties. With the fly half about to give the killer pass outside for the score in the corner, up stepped the one and only Pol Pot to pluck the ball out the air and proceed to outpace everyone for the 95 metre interception. Game, set and match.

Despite another late consolation from HAC the game was done and the IVs had overcome a potential banana skin to reach their 3rd playoff final in as many years with a 45-26 win. An opportunity for the threepeat, glory, immortality.

Man of the match went to the CHlarman and Pilks for outstanding efforts in the loose and tight respectively. Richard of the day went to Grindr for turning up 30 mins late, however, he left before his punishment, so obese Chi stepped up to take his pint for him. A special shout out to the pack though who were outstanding at scrum and lineout time, while providing a relentless work rate to get themselves round the pitch. Superb effort from all.

So on to the final and another match-up with Millfield who have pieced together an impressive season with one solitary loss.....a 42-5 one to the IVs....

Will Thorogood added that there were two games at the weekend, one in the northern hemisphere, and one in the southern! Time zones almost the same?! Details of the Nomads in South Africa are still to filter through, but sure that amity and entente cordial won the day, whatever the result on the field of play or battle?! A report from the 4's about their MMT2 Semi-Final Play-Off precedes these notes so, to cut a long story short, the 4's are through to the Final (third year on the trot) to meet Millfield Badgers, our tenants, on the 8th April at Staines RFC! Should be a good one!

Rosslyn Park IV's 45 HAC 3's 26. As usual, a competitive game, with a few scares for the 4's. An early score by HAC Woke the 4's up from their Saturday morning slumbers, and then they duly set to work in building a solid advantage 26-7 at half time. The boys tired a little towards the end and conceded a couple of late tries.

I'd just like to reiterate my respect and thanks to Pippa and her

Announcing
The Rosslyn Park FC Club Dinner
8 April 2017 K.O. 7.30PM

Come and celebrate all that is GREAT about Park

Dear All

To get everyone in the club together before the end of the season we are in the process of arranging The Rosslyn Park FC Club Dinner.

One Evening: One Club

That means we want to encourage all sections of the club to attend: the minis and their parents, youth players, clubsides, Stingbacks, 1st XV squad, members, supporters, former players, friends and family... everyone involved with the Park.

The dinner will be organised to celebrate all that is great about Rosslyn Park and the focus will be on you - the people that make up our diverse and vibrant community.

We are planning this to be a massive party and want to pack the clubhouse to the seams

The dinner will take place after the 1st XV home match against Hull Tonians on Saturday the 8th of April kicking off around 7.30 in the evening.

We'll be publishing further information shortly - we're currently in the process of inviting some very special guests.

Please spread the word and get in touch with Dom in the office on: 020 8876 6044 or email: dom.shabbo@rosslynpark.co.uk with ideas and to book your places.

staff, who promptly dealt with an HAC player's potentially serious neck injury. A concerning few moments. The player went by ambulance to hospital for precautionary examination and appropriate treatment.

Slingbacks

The Slingbacks finished their season on a bit of a roll with a splendid 36-0 win over Crowthorne, to end up on equal points with the fifth placed clubs. It saw the Slingbacks for the first time in a couple of seasons being able to name a full squad, and while it wasn't quite the strongest possible, it certainly reinforced the view that they could have finished higher but for injuries and player availability. To have done this with so many newly recruited youngsters is especially satisfying. What has been really impressive is the way that, even in the worst situations everyone has worked for each other without question. The most senior players have always been supportive of the younger ones when errors have been made.

Robyn Gordon on a run

Unfortunately the match report did not arrive in time for our deadline, but it was an impressive all round performance, with everyone playing her part. Robyn Gordon looked a constant menace and, I think, bagged a couple of tries. Alice Lovatt and Maria Castellina (who also got a try) ran midfield, while Chrissie Ovendon was the usual constant thorn in the opposition's side.

Alice Lovatt spurs an attack

Following a successful recruitment campaign the Park girls have several players of outstanding promise who have improved every game. They could easily hit the ground running next season. However there is a caveat. There needs to be an improvement in attendance at training and availability on Sundays. Other teams at this level train twice a week. It's still an amateur sport, and there will always be difficulties with other commitments, but the players owe it to themselves and to the team to be really diligent. It would be a real shame to see some outstanding young talent fall short of reaching its potential.

Women's Super Rugby to launch in England

This should not overly affect the Slingbacks immediately but you may have read that Women's Super Rugby is coming to England next season. In a previous Parknews we conjectured as to what Harlequins knew when they effectively took over Aylesford Bulls, a small - but immensely talented - Premiership team in Kent. Now we know: the RFU has confirmed that 10 clubs that have been offered places, subject to contract, in the new women's domestic competition from September 2017. A re-named Aylesford Quins, playing some home matches at the Stoop, will be part of it.

There are three new entrants to the league that differ from the current Women's Premiership: Gloucester-Hartpury and Waterloo who all compete currently in the leagues below are included while Loughborough Students will be included with a team called Lightning entering the competition.

Controversially, there is no place for Lichfield, who are currently sitting in second place in the Premiership, and have been one of the mainstays of English women's Rugby for years. They have regularly staged cup finals and have provided several England Internationals but are now out in the cold.

The competition will receive a multi-million pound investment from the RFU over the next three years to help deliver the minimum standards expected and provide high-quality coaching, facilities, training environments and community engagement plans.

RFU Director of Professional Rugby Nigel Melville said: "This is another significant development for women's rugby in this country. Women's Super Rugby will drive standards in the game, both domestically and at an elite level, and continue to encourage more women and girls to play the sport. We now have the opportunity to build a world-class domestic competition, with the backing and funding of the RFU, demonstrating the union's commitment to growing the game at all levels (sic)."

The competition's structure has all the teams playing each other on a home and away basis. The top four teams at the end of the home-and-away season qualify for the play-offs which follow a 1 v 4, 2 v 3 system. The two winners will play in the final. All clubs will have to meet the RFU's Minimum Standards Criteria to remain in the competition.

Needless to say, there is no promotion or relegation in the first two seasons of the competition, and so no chance for Lichfield to show that playing merit can mean as much as money, as most of their best players will have moved elsewhere by the time they might have a chance of promotion.

It is a really positive development that the RFU are putting millions of pounds into the development of the women's game, and there is no intention here to knock that. But as soon as money gets involved, even when it's something one wants to support, there always seems to be the sense of a charmed circle that get the lion's share. Perhaps one day the RFU will come to the same conclusion as did the Egyptians thousands of years ago - when you want to build a pyramid, if it's going to last make sure you build a strong base. It's what holds the rest up.

Mini and Youth Rugby

The Club will be running more of the popular Rosslyn Park Academy Training camps during the Easter holidays. There are two camps: a Coaching camp and an Elite camp. Both run from 10-13 April. Full details and enrolment forms are available from Dom Shabbo in the Club Office.

National 1 Review

Champions Hartpury continued their unbeaten run with a 26-34 win at Darlington Mowden Park, though only a late penalty denied the home side a losing bonus point. Plymouth Albion had a ninth successive win, this time by 45-0 over lowly Blaydon and look likely to be runners-up as they are eight points ahead of Amphill with only four matches remaining. The Amps also recorded a 5-point win, in their case at home to Hull Ionians.

Birmingham Moseley remain fourth, six points ahead of ourselves in fifth, thanks to a win over basement club Macclesfield, who fought back from 21-7 down to 21-19 before a late try sunk them at 28-24. Our next opponents, Coventry, kept up the pressure, a point behind ourselves with a 36-27 away win at Cambridge. Blackheath are seventh after a 35-32 defeat at Loughborough. Perhaps the surprise result of the day - certainly in terms of the score - was Old Albanian 19 Esher 65.

Advance rail tickets are on sale for the match at Blaydon on 22 April. It currently looks cheapest to buy two single tickets at around £27 each (£18:50 if you have a railcard) than to buy a return. Newcastle is the station to book to and there is a frequent bus service to Blaydon from outside the station that takes about 15-20 minutes. Please note that this match will kick off at 2:30PM.

Rarely, this Parknews does not contain any photos from David Whittam. Fear not, our resident lensman has not come to harm but was otherwise engaged last Saturday on a ship off the coast of Norway photographing the Northern Lights. He will be back for Coventry this weekend (and thanks to Marian for covering the Fylde match).

Juniors and Prep Schools

There are no winners to report of the Junior and Prep School tournaments as the new RFU guidelines preclude tournaments that find overall winners before Under-12s. Instead Waterfall Tournaments were played (and greatly enjoyed) for these schools in which the winners of each group go through to 'A' groups in the second phase. Second, third and fourth places in each group go through to B, C, and D groups respectively. But there are no overall winners.
